5

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A line interface capable of connecting to a variety of transport mediums, each having a different impedance. The line interface comprises a programmable resistor. The programmable resistor along with an external resistor provide a range of resistor values which are used to substantially match the impedance requirements of the various transport mediums.